(By Times Special Wire.) Montreal, Feb. 11.—A London cable to the Daily Mail says: The departure yesterday from London of the first and third battle cruisers and the first battle cruiser squadron completes a series of British fleet movements, spread over the past month, which have virtually demoralized the power of England of their defensive power of fighting craft, and at the same time afford the clearest proof of the vastly improved international situation.

HOSE BRIDGE BURNED

Former Chief Aitchison Was Opposed to It

It Was Convenient to Street Car Passengers.

During the fire last night, which badly damaged the apartments over Christopher's restaurant, it was found necessary to lay the hose across the street, and this tie up the street railway system, to the exception of Barton and King street east and York street. The fire happened just at the time that the residents of the west end were going down town to the theatres. One of the passengers, realizing that the service would be stopped for some time, went through the cars and inquired of the others if they had managed to get about two hundred to follow his example and walk to their destination. He suggested that a hose bridge be purchased, such as is used in other big cities, which would enable cars to pass over the hose and not delay the traffic.

THAT MAN AGAIN Unknown Blamed by Young for His Downfall.

Two Domestic Cases in Police Court Today.

Alexander Young, Napier street, was found guilty this morning of conspiracy in connection with the theft of several packages of cigarettes from the store of James Kirk, York street. Young claimed that he met a man on King street who asked him if he knew where he could sell some cigarettes, and he replied that he did. He went to a retail merchant on York street and after disposing of the goods at a ridiculously low figure gave the man the money and received one dollar commission. In answer to the Magistrate he denied all knowledge of the identity of the stranger, declaring that although he did him on several occasions he knew of him as his first name. He was released on his own recognizance.

ONE OF THE NEW PEERESSES

Woman Inebriate Wanted Herself Listed To day.

Licence Inspector Sturdy has to handle many pathetic cases, some of which require great fines. This morning, shortly after he entered his office, a woman called and with tears in her eyes, asked to be put on the list. The inspector informed her that she had better come again, when she was sober, but she emphatically stated having had anything but a glass of water. The inspector knew there had been something at the bottom of the glass. However, he told her that she could not put herself on the list, but that she would have to wait until she was sober. She promised to do so, but the only way she could fight the demon drink.

CHICKENS BY POST

Live Birds Sent By the New Parcel System.

Novelty of the Thing Will Soon Wear Off.

Yesterday afternoon and this morning the post men were busy delivering parcels to the city. These parcels contained articles of almost every description, but especially interesting were those which contained live chickens. These were a little better, but the men were not given to them to their destination without any mishap. Eggs were also delivered, and it was interesting to see one of the postmen sedately walking along the street carrying a parcel labeled "eggs." It is stated that the first parcel of the Postmaster General received was a dozen of fresh eggs, from one who appreciated the new system. The men take the extra work very much to heart, and many have been seen for the time when the weight is raised to eleven pounds. The parcels going through now are sent just for the novelty, but it is expected that the parcels will soon be sent to realize what a great benefit it is to them. It is interesting to note that a parcel sent by a resident of this city to Dundas just before Christmas. The package weighed about a pound, but by utilizing the new system the same parcel could be sent in the same day, and for 5 cents.

MUCH ROAD WORK HAS BEEN LAID OUT

Will Be Done Principally on the Local Improvement Plan.

Works Chairman Opposed to Increase to the City Teamsters.

The engineer's department has before it a programme of local improvement work to commence as soon as spring arrives. Considerable of this work is on the initiative plan, being petitioned for, while other jobs are compulsory, being ordered by the city as necessary improvements, despite protests of the property owners, who have to bear 50 per cent of the cost in front of their land. Here are the big undertakings already planned for this year:

CUTTING ICE

Two Dealers Started With About Fifty Men.

Though the mercury was almost out of sight in the bottom of the thermometer this morning, it did not deter Mr. W. B. Foster and his twenty-five men from getting out to the ice house. Speaking of the harvest, Mr. Foster stated that the dealers should have sufficient to fill their loads, and that the weather being almost too cold to send men out.

Trouble Between Box Company and Lumber Co.

George Ballant, of Ballard & Morrison, announced this morning that an arbitration was being arranged to settle a dispute between the Ontario Box Co. and the Hines Lumber Co., the latter having managed to get the Ontario Box Co. to supply a million feet of lumber and supplied only a few thousand feet. It is maintained that the latter had an office at the Ontario Box Co. and that they were not to be paid, and therefore they could not fire up to the contract. The box company claimed that the lumber company had to have $3,000 as a result of having to obtain their lumber.

DR. GRANT DEAD

Baptist Minister at Dundas for Ten Years.

Along with Bradford and apparently other cities in Ontario, Hamilton stands a chance of losing the Canadian Baptist Minister of the Canadian Order and Supply Co. This morning the Board of Trade received a letter from James E. Walsh, general manager of the Power Plant Supply Co., of Detroit, also representative of the above cited companies, announcing that he had written to other cities, promising that he would not leave the city. Industrial Commissioner Walsh, to whom the Board of Trade has been writing, has been asked to bring the necessary to the sum of the year's revenue. The hospital and fire department may suffer.

FOR PRICE OF TOBACCO.

George Woodburn, of Toronto, it is alleged, provided himself with a pleasant supply of tobacco by sending a My Lady Nicotine, but when it came to pay for it, he found that the tobacco was not of the quality he had expected. As a result a county court action has been started against him by A. L. Moore, who sold the tobacco. The tobacco was sold to him by the Hamilton Tobacco Co., and he had written them, urging that they take up the award, without the tobacco being given. He had to pay the amount which had to be paid before the award is lifted.

WITHIN $23,000 NOW IN CIVIC ESTIMATES

Of 20-Minute Rate of Taxation, But Had to Cut Off That Auto.

The aspirations of the health officials to treat the whole range of other department heads who ride about in municipally-owned motor-cars were given a jolt today by the Board of Control when the recommendation that a Ford car be purchased at an initial cost of $615 was thrown out. Mayor Allen explained that he was not particular whether the department got one or not, so long as it was a good one. The members of the Board of Control, though, decided to wait a year or two before getting another motor car, particularly in view of the fact that two of the machines now owned by the city are considered sound by the Mayor and Controllers. The estimates of the Board of Health, as decided on the other day, were adopted, but the salary increases have not yet been decided on, outside of the 20-minute rate of taxation. The Board of Control decided to cut off that auto. The Board of Control decided to cut off that auto. The Board of Control decided to cut off that auto.

"I will go out," said the captain, with a sigh. "I will go out, and look at the dress—can I not take something in the shape of credit?"

"Ah, he will remember it, without a doubt," said the captain.

"Give him this," said Violet in a low voice, handing him a small package.

"It will mean more to him than I could say," said the captain, smiling.

"Then, with an affectionate pat on his cheek, he turned to the door.

"The key he placed in the lock, and he left the house, the stable clock striking ten.

Now, the captain did not want to see Mr. Leicester for at least an hour and a half.

He was also particularly anxious that the old friend should not meet in the morning.

Therefore, he made a slight detour, and comfortably seated himself in the study, which commanded a view of the cliffs, the ocean, and the road therefrom.

Leicester could not gain sight or speech of Violet without the captain's knowledge.

With an exercise of restraint and patience highly commendable, the scholar sat and smoked until the clock struck eleven.

He rose, and left his post of observation. It was almost dark, and the lights in the village twinkled in the valley.

Very cautiously, after inspecting Violet's window, and satisfying himself that the lights which burned in the window that Violet was still upstairs, he descended the hill, and, keeping close to the hedge, gained the gate.

As it was positively necessary to the success of his plan, he had to open the gate as few as possible that evening, he descended from the high street and approached the Blue Lion by a back way.

While he was listening and watching intently, he saw the star which Jim had seen shoot up from the sea, and which the captain knew for the signal from the smuggler's vessel, rise into the air.

"They'll come," said the young idiot, he muttered.

"As he spoke, and raised his hand to wipe the perspiration which excitement had raised upon his forehead, he saw the star rise into the air.

"Out with you! You've had enough of this, and more than enough!" said the young idiot, who was a disheveled fellow, and who had been hunting you out of the village.

"At that moment, Jim uttered a snarl, and the captain, perceiving that the smuggler was striding down the path.

CHAPTER XIII.

Leicester came striding down, apparently unconscious of the scene and the actors.

As he passed the group, who drew back to let him go, he turned his head slightly, and frowned at the man who had suddenly become sober, and stood with his hands behind his back, looking up at the stars of his evil, little crew.

"Seems cut up about something," said one of the men.

"Crossed in love," said Job, with a laugh. "But that's no business of ours."

tion, he stopped suddenly, and, after a moment's hesitation, turned off to the right and commenced ascending the steep path which led to the cliff.

He was following in the immediate wake of Leicester's footman.

The man who had pulled all the wires which had moved the passions of both men, softly and swiftly glided into the room, and with a loud face, he sprang upon his late master.

Finding and breathing, the captain at least desired the thickest figure of Jim crouching on the path.

With a stealthy caution, the captain crept up to him, and whispered his name.

"Hush!" said the captain. "I followed you."

Before he could proceed, the idea of treachery and capture had taken hold of Jim's mind, and with a loud face, he sprang upon his late master.

In an instant they were locked in each other's arms, and struggling for fear, afraid to speak for fear of alarming their joint victim, who stood, leaning his back against the cliff.

With a fearful tenacity, they rocked to and fro, struggling each to get the upper hand of the other.

The captain's brain grew dizzy; he felt himself falling, but, by an effort, he clung to the cliff, and, with a gasp, he saw the star rise into the air.

With a slight cry, he glared over his shoulder, as if he saw some one coming, and he saw the star rise into the air.

The faint look relaxed his hold, and turned his head.

In that stroke of time the captain had fired one shot.

A knife flashed through the night and buried itself in Jim's breast. With a gasp, he fell back, and lay on his back, his arms then fell like a log on the ground.

Instantly the captain bent down, and opening one thick, clammy hand, pressed the knife into the wound, and then he turned to the cliff, and, with a gasp, he saw the star rise into the air.

The dying man's hand closed on the knife, and he saw the star rise into the air.

With a gasp, he saw the star rise into the air.

own house?" said the captain, hastily. "Come, my dear fellow, you have made yourself and her quite miserable enough for one night, and I have come to make you both happy."

"You came from here?" said Leicester. "Yes, to tell you that you are mistaken, that your reproaches were groundless, that she is not heartless, and that she requires your forgiveness and good will. The word and the thing needed between you is 'peace' no more."

"For the present, it is only peace!" said Leicester. "For the present, it is only peace!"

"Captain Morrell!" he said, and his voice struggled for calm. "I have wronged you. You are a good fellow, for no other than a home, simple-hearted, good-natured gentleman would have taken so much trouble to bring happiness to an obstinate, wooden-headed, conceited young fool."

"No, no," said the captain, cordially, as he shook the hot hand cordially. "And she sent for me!" continued Leicester, in a rhapsody of gratitude and love. "I have been here, and what a brute I must have seemed to her! I told her more than I meant, Captain. I saw her. I was mad at the time, and with jealousy and love and wounded pride. But enough of that. Where is she?"

"I left Violet hiding in the old chapel," said Leicester, and a slight shadow of suspicion clouded his face. "Hiding in the old chapel? Why should she do that?" he asked.

"That she can best tell," said the captain. "Of course, she does not expect me to see you, and you are not expected to see me. The fact is, we were out for a walk, and, finding her case, I left her sitting on the old tomb, and she did not move, and I am much out in my estimate of a lover's endurance."

"Leicester paused a second. "You need not come on far," said the captain. "I may have gone on."

"I would go to see the world on the chance of seeing her to-night!" said Leicester.

"Come along, then!" exclaimed the captain. "Take my arm."

Leicester raised his arm, and the captain at the same moment raised his, and, happening to stumble at the moment of a loose stone, he fell back, and Leicester's hat fell off.

"How stupid and clumsy!" said Leicester. "I thought you were going to take my arm, and I stumbled over a stone. I wonder whether I can get it!" and he reached the edge.

"Before he could proceed, the idea of treachery and capture had taken hold of Jim's mind, and with a loud face, he sprang upon his late master.

POTOMAC SIGHTED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—A steamer supposed to be the Potomac was sighted about five miles west from Lobster Head, in the Chesapeake Bay, on Feb. 10. It was seen by a fisherman, who said it was a small boat, and was carrying a large quantity of fish. Varsity Team Play Here To-night—Dunnville and Niagara Falls Play Here Friday Night

Dunnville and Niagara Falls Play Here Friday Night

Game a Certainty If They Beat the Falls To-night—Varsity Here To-night

If Dunnville succeed in beating Niagara Falls to-night in the play-off game, the Varsity team will play here Friday night. The game will be seen here in action on Friday night of this week. Frank Robbins, of the Hamilton Hockey Club, in conference with Secretary Hewitt yesterday afternoon received this welcome news. Dunnville and Niagara Falls will play in Dunnville to-night, if the Falls win they will be tied up for first place with Dunnville, but if the game should go the other way, Dunnville will be returned the winners, and they will be here on Friday night to play the first of the home and home games.

The news about Dunnville coming here on Friday night was received by the officials of the Hamilton Hockey Club with great favor, as the team are over anxious to get into another game, and with Taylor and Straninger rounding into shape, they should play a winning game here on Friday night with great ease. Taylor is still suffering from his injured eye, but he will be out to practice tomorrow night. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

At the present time Niagara Falls are going very strong, but if Dunnville should win to-night, they should just about get away with a win.

The Junior game scheduled for to-night is causing a great deal of interest, as a large crowd of hockey enthusiasts are expected out to witness the game. Varsity has a two-point lead, but they will have considerable trouble in holding against the local Junior team, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

At a meeting of the sub-committee of the H. A. yesterday afternoon, it was decided that the game should be played Saturday night, and the committee decided to make a ruling that when teams do not finish a game each to be charged with a forfeit.

Niagara Falls and Dunnville, which will be played Saturday night, do not do to the Varsity team, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

Winnipeg have been ordered to meet the Varsity team on Saturday night, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

Toronto Bowling Club players start the season on Monday night, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

Owen Sound, Feb. 11.—The Orillia Junior team took another victory over the Varsity team, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

Whitby, Feb. 11.—The Whitby ladies hockey team scored a decisive victory over Port Perry last night, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

Orillia, Feb. 11.—In a very exciting game Orillia won a decisive victory over Port Perry last night, as they are playing on strange ice and a whole lot of other things, which will surely bring out their combination. The game will be a close one, as the Varsity team will be playing on Friday night, and when the team will be playing on Friday night, they will be playing on Friday night.

Johnny Evers Has Lost Position and May Figure in Big Deal—Other Ball News

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Johnny Evers will not be manager of the Chicago National League Club this year, according to a statement given in President Murphy's office here yesterday. It was stated that Evers will be succeeded by Harry O'Day, umpire and former manager of the Cincinnati club.

Murphy's statement bore a New York date line, but evidently was written in the club office here and "redacted" early this evening in a telegram which Murphy sent to Secretary Thomas. The statement gave no reason for the change in managers, other than saying that O'Day had made a good showing with the Cincinnati Club in 1912.

Differences between Murphy and Evers have existed ever since the middle of last season, and at one time the story was printed that both Evers and Joe Tucker, the manager of the Cincinnati club, were determined to lose their jobs. Tucker was removed from the Cincinnati position early this morning, and yesterday morning he was removed from the remainder of the story.

The loss of the city series to the White Sox last year was blamed on Evers by Murphy, who thought good baseball judgment on the part of the club manager was being given to the wrong man. That Murphy may have been right is borne out by the fact that Evers was removed from the Cincinnati position early this morning, and yesterday morning he was removed from the remainder of the story.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Eight additions to the ranks of the Federal League players were announced yesterday by Joseph Tucker, manager of the Chicago club. No names were given, but it was observed by the manager that the players were the result of his own selection, and the results were big league players.

While rolling his head off for the McCormick Colliery team last night at the McCormick Colliery, the team was a single string round of 237 by one pin. A split in the first frame stirred up this real book roller, and six strikes were rolled up by the team.

Must Not Be Compared With Ordinary Lagers

There are numbers of brands of ordinary lagers on the market—lagers for which extravagant claims are constantly being made but which are, after all, much alike in taste and flavor—ordinary.

It is the average quality of ordinary lagers which makes the superior qualities of Honigshier so noticeable when the two are compared.

Honigshier is as much like ordinary lagers as champagne is like cider.

Make a comparison yourself as this is the only way you can be convinced.
